

Professional Indemnity for Excluded Professions Excluded Activities List

Our general professionals policy wording provides extraordinary professional indemnity cover for a wide range of professions and business activities.

It is not, however, suitable for everyone. Please read the following list of excluded activities. We do not cover any of these business activities under this policy and would not pay a claim in relation to them

Excluded professions and business activities:

- actuaries
- animal care or training
- architects
- bailiffs/sheriffs
- barristers
- book keepers (cover available with PI for Accountants)
- broadcasters
- businesses directly or indirectly regulated by the FSA
- catering
- children's classes e.g. dance classes, performance classes
- design and construct professionals
- direct marketing companies
- engineers (including civil and structural)
- entertainers
- film production companies
- hospitality
- independent financial advisors (IFAs)
- insurance intermediaries
- legal advisors
- loss adjustors/assessors
- manual trades and crafts e.g. painters, plumbers, electricians
- medical treatment and diagnosis
- oil/offshore/nuclear industries
- physical trainers
- product designers
- project managers
- retailers
- sales promotion companies
- security guards
- solicitors
- surveyors
- trade associations
- wholesalers

Important information

If you are unsure as to whether your business would be suitable for this policy, please contact us for further information - we may be able to offer you a solution through our network of brokers.

In addition, our general professionals policy is not suitable for professions and business activities covered by our industry specific policies – accountants, energy assessors, estate and letting agents, IT consultants, management consultants, marketing and media consultants, and recruitment consultants. Please check the eligibility page on our website for a full list of business activities covered therein.